

Accreditation fees and caps on participant fees

Living Longer Living Stronger provider fee

The annual provider fee for an organisation is $275 GST inclusive.

The annual provider fee for a sole trader is $99 GST inclusive.

This is not an ongoing license fee payable per month or class, as is the case for some other fitness programs, but rather a small fee to be paid once a year.

These fees may be subject to change following the initial roll out in Tasmania, to ensure sustainability of the program, but we will always ensure that the program is cost effective for our providers.

Definitions:

An organisation is a legal entity, such as a company or registered charity, that has multiple staff members. Organisations will typically have operational control over the facility or facilities at which they deliver the sessions, whether that is through direct ownership of the building(s) or as leasee of the premises.

A sole trader is an individual that operates as a sole trading business or contractor. Sole traders will often have no operational control of the facility or facilities in which they deliver the sessions. They may hire the premises on a short-term basis or use the space free of charge. A sole trader might also opt to not use a physical facility at all, instead delivering online sessions (e.g. using a video conferencing application such as Zoom).

Our sole trader provider fee is a reduced rate recognising that sole traders and contractors do not have the same resources or economies of scale to cover their operational costs, including program licensing fees.

Caps on participant fees

Per session fees are capped to ensure that participants have affordable access to strength and balance training.

Fees charged by providers must remain at or below these caps.

As long as fees are within the caps, the pricing structure is up to each provider. Providers can charge a per session fee, weekly or monthly fee, or even include Living Longer Living Stronger sessions as part of a membership plan.

Session fee caps

The tier 1 cap per session (per participant) is $15.

The tier 2 cap per session (per participant) is $10.

Session fee caps: assessments

The participant assessments have a higher cap, in recognition of the greater resourcing cost for conducting a one-on-one assessment.

The tier 1 cap per assessment is $85.

The tier 2 cap per assessment is $60.
